alem Post Political Reporter KFAR SABA. — The Prime Minister yesterday warned against lowering the nation's eleriness to threats from across the cease-fire lines. Saying "I will not be surprised if we suddenly hear shots from across the Suez Canal," Mrs. Meir rejected calls for cutting the defence budget.

She also firmly denied that "there is a selective exploitation" of security problems to cover up for other unsolved problems.

The Premier was addressing the Social-Political Luncheons Club of the Labour Party Youth Division. The meeting was at times stormy, with some of the young politicians interrupting her answers.

Expanding on her warning of possible fighting along the Canal, Mrs. Meir noted that although President Sadat had so often failed to carry out his repeated threats to open fire, "no one can be sure to open fire, "no one can be salthat this situation will continue."

NO DEATH PENALTY Carr rejected a demand for le-

Meanwhile, in Northern Ireland British army sources said yesterday it may launch searches in the Roman Catholic neighbourhods of Belfast and Londonderry to find the Soviet rockets.

A decision to draw up plans for the search was made in an overnight war council meeting between Ulster Secretary William Whitelaw and Army Commander Gen. Sir Harry Tuzo, they said.

The sources said it was believed the IRIA received at least eight of the anti-tank rocket launchers and an ample supply of ammunition from Palestiman terrorist outlets in Algeria. They said the weapons arrived in the Irish Republic in fishing boats last month and were subsequently smuggled across the border into Ulster.

Since their introduction 10 days ago, the rockets and homemade mortars have killed two men and wounded more than 20 others. Of these, 12 were soldiers injured when a rocket hit their armoured car

The decision to take action against the Soviet rockets coincided with the formation of a special task force in Ulster to stunt rellgious fanatics believed responsible for 106 murders this year. Police said five cars and 20 sol-

FELDSPAR MOUNTAIN

In southeastern Sinal, they had also found "a whole mountain" severai kilometres square, containing feldspar, an important mineral for the ceramics and false teeth industries. The quantity was great, the quality good and the concentration high. In addition, the mountain was only half an hour's drive from Sharm. Further to these minerals which

LONDON (UPI). - The lollipop lobby won a comic victory in Parliament on Wednesday night. when anti-violence campaigner William Price admitted defeat in his battle against "Tom and Jerry" cartoons.

"Whatever my own feelings may be, I cannot fight 10 million children," said Price, a Member of Parliament. "It is clear that there's not a kid in the country who agrees with me."

The battle between Mr. Price and the nation's youngsters was joined over his contention that the cat and mouse cartoons should be banned by the Brit-

PARIS (AP). - French police said yesterday they had arrested two Israelis, Michel Mahboub, 19, and Ya'acov Rak, 20, while they were trying to rob a car.

The police discounted reports that they were suspected terrorists. They said that the two youths spoke only Hebrew and had made a number of mistakes that would call attention to themselves mistakes that no trained terrorists would make.

The youths carried two pistols but said this was because they had heard Jews were frequently attacked in Europe and they wanted to be able to defend themselves.

SPOTLIGHTING ROTH'S FURNITURE

Buying furniture is a matter involving trust, and when a family decides to buy furniture, it also considers the layout of its flat, and the convenience and enjoyment it hopes to derive from the flat. In order to bring things to a successful conclusion, it is essential to buy from a shop where advice can be sought that is both professional and offered in good faith.

At the end of Rehov Herzl is the well appointed furniture shop, Roth's Furniture. Two young, energetic architects, Danny (Dick) Both and Ady Korpus, will be pleased to give you professional advice on the internal arrangement of your flat, and the most suitable type and colour for the furniture. You won't be pressed to place an order there and then.

At Roth's Furniture, you will find a display of fine furniture, made to exclusive foreign designs. If you have in mind a type of suite not on display, you need simply bring a photo illustrating the style, or you can make a choice from the many pictures in the furniture catalogues kept in the shop. Your order will be filled quickly and accurately.

Of particular interest is the fact that Roth's Furniture is the sole manufacturer of the model that took first prize at the Milan furniture competition (see illustration). You will be well satisfied if you go to Roth's Furniture. 78 Behov Herzl, Tel Aviv. Tel. 827163: you will be served politely, and will appreciate the men, who are young in both years and style.

The kosher cowboy

By SHEILA MELTZER Jerusalem Post Reporter

EH.AT. GADI Katz is a kosher cowboy. More than six feet tail, with eyes crinkling at the corners as he smiles his slow grin, he is the double of Gregory Peck in "Billy Two-Hats" now being shot in Eilat. On location in Nahal Shlomo, seeing them both in their identical clothes, beards, and hats, it was only close up that I could see the difference between them.

Gadi, a 31-year old Sabra from

Tel 'Aviv, fell into his new part quite by chance. A tourist guide by profession, he offered the services of his car, with himself as driver, Algonquin Films, when it was collecting a crew to make the film. He was taken on as Gregory Peck's personal driver until one day he was called over by the Production Manager Brian Burgess, who told him he was worth more to the film as a double than as a driver! Immediate screen tests proved Burgess right and Gadi was thrust into a new profession.

Ze'ev Berlinsky, a veteran of the Israeli theatre, greeted me with "Piz-nani tchuskubeh nishe?" I thought he was making a Polish joke but told me it means "What, no whisky?" in Indian — one of the lines he had to learn in the native tongue for the film.

Even though he had never ridden a horse before, Berlinsky grabbed the chance of a part in the film which meant playing an Indian with three other real Indians—"a real challenge," as he puts it, as well as "the pleasure of acting with Gregory Peck." The only Taraeli actor in the film, Berlinsky especially enjoys the strenuous physical tasks of his role as a whisky-crasy Indian.

Brian Burgess, the blonde British production manager, is developing a deep tan with the film. The five and a half weeks' of shooting around Eliat in Taba, Nahal Shlomo and the Valley of the Moon, from sunrise to sunset (everyone is on the set at 6 a.m.) is giving him plenty of sun.

Stripped to the waist, so as not to miss one precious ray, he is everywhere — in the office, at the stables housing the film's twelve horses, on the set and checking the other locations. "Billy Two Hats" is his first film in Israel and he is highly satisfied.

Mapai empire

If the merger was progressing so well, I wondered, why did the largest division — Mapai — still hold on to its foreign language newspaper empire as well as to the Party's real estate owned by Batei Arlosoroff Ltd? Why did these assets not become the property of the abour Party as a whole?

Mr. Yadlin replied: "These are independent companies not requiring any legal change in their status. We are currently looking into their profit and loss situation so that when the legal change arising from the merged Party does about we will know what their real worth is."

Mr. 'Yadin volunteered another example — the party College, Belt top post at Tucson. Berl, of which he is Chairman. Formally it is owned by the Berl Katznelson Foundation, of which he is also Chairman, and is registered as belonging to Mapai, but in fact Belt Berl is run by a Board of Governors on which "all sections of the Party are represented."

With a twinkle in his eye he oted, "the two parties that merged with us (Mapai) came with quite a treasury of debts involving cer-tain arrangements... I am sure that ouce we clear up these debts, the entire question of Party assets will be cleared up."

Mr. Yadlin rejected out of hand reports that it was intended to reduce the number of M.K.s accruing to ex-Rafi and ex-Ahdut Haavoda in the Labour Party quota of the Alignment Knesset list. 'I have already notified the Leadership Bureau that no discussion, whether formal or informal, had taken place on such a proposal. We do not intend tackling the compo-sition of the list within the near future. Moreover no one is entitled to make any binding promises regarding the Knesset list. Obviously there will be some changes, with new blood being infused especially from the younger generation and immigrants from Asian and African countries."

became friends and are now trying to create a close bond between the two universities. They foresee the publicity. two universities. They foresee the Mr. Yadiin sincerely believes that possibility of exchanging faculty heads and students.

True, the University of Arizons at Tucson with 27,000 students is "slightly" bigger than the University of the Negev. It has 14 faculties and a teaching staff of 1,400. At Tucson 18,000 students are doing graduate and post-graduate work. The school also has a cosmopolitan atmosphere with 780 foreign students representing 74 different countries. In July, 1971, Dr. Schaefer became the 17th and youngest-ever president of the university. He was born in New York City in 1934 and studied at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. He earned his Ph.D. de-gree at the University of Illinois and subsequently won one of six National Science Foundation fellowships for post-doctoral study. In January, 1970, he became dean of the College of Liberal Arts of the University of California at Berkeley, a position he left to take up his

He has published over 40 articles in various scientific journals, and in 1971 he co-authored "Research Techniques in Organic Chemistry." Dr. Schaefer is married to the former Helen Schwarz of Highland Park, Illinois. His wife has an M.Sc. degree in chemistry. They have two daugh-ters, Ann and Susan.

Dr. Schaefer says he regrets that as president of his university he doesn't have time to teach. He looks forward to a "cooperative relationship" between his university and the University of the Negev and "the beginning of a long and successful partnership," and, he adds with a smile, he hopes that this first trip to Israel won't be his last.

Religious Council needs overhaul

SO long as the sad goings-on in the Jerusalem Religious Council - the politicking and mutual recriminations - affected only the party officials and Council employees who participete in them, the public could afford to look on with bemused disdain. Now, however, with the strike in the Council in its sixth day and Jerusalem's fresh meat supplies dwindling fast, it is time to demand that the affairs of the Council be restored to respectable normalcy.

The State Comptroller's report on the Council's activities up to last year had hardly a good word for any of the Council's departments. Finances were hopelessly uncontrolled, the Comptroller found, with irregular practices the order of the day. Employees apparently felt free to come late and leave early, and there were even cases of employees leaving the country for extended periods and still receiving their Council salaries.

Last year, the political parties in the Capital reached the unanimous realization that the state of the Council had got out of hand. A new man, Mr. Yehoshua Baruchi, with a wealth of administrative experience in numerous capacities, was installed as chairman. While it was felt impossible, or at least impolitic, to make a really clean sweep and dislodge the two or three "strong men" who have for years run the Council's affairs from the key positions in which they are ensconced, it was decided that at least in financial matters the new chairman would have extensive pow-

The spectacle of Mr. Baruchi telling newsmen soon after assuming his post that he had changed the lock on the mail box and was distributing the post himself to prevent it being pilfared was not edifficient. telling pilfered was not edifying — but it was hoped that his determination augured the much-needed fundamental overhaul.

A year later it is now clear that those hopes were premature, or perhaps too optimistic. Jerusalem is paying the price of its politicians' failure to make a clean sweep at the Religious Council. Mr. Baruchi has been unable to function as he would have liked because of the cal-culated campaign of disruption and non-cooperation waged against him by the "old guard," who still hold powerful positions in the Council

Recently, the Gahal representative on the Council levelled charges of a criminal nature against another deputy chairman against another deputy chairman and a senior employee who be-tween them manage the employ-ees' provident fund. It is against the background of these charges — and the unwillingness of the employees' leaders to have them thoroughly investigated — that the current dispute and strike have broken out.

The Minister for Religious Affairs, Dr. Warhaftig, long ago suggested that government-ap pointed committees be installed in place of Religious Councils, which cannot or will not manage their affairs satisfactorily. That is already the practice in the case of local authorities. The Justice Ministry backs the idea, and draft legislation has been submitted to the Cabinet. The situation in the Capital appears to demand that the Cabinet bring in the required law without delay.

A BIT TIRING, BUT POSSIBLE

Arabs consider oil as weapon

IN their desperate search for world pressures to help them in their confrontation with Is-rael, Arab economic ministers convened in Cairo this week to outline a policy governing their trade relations with the outside

The research bureau of the Egyptian Middle East News Agency said that the economic meeting, held under the auspices of the 18-nation Arab League, was given a 100-page report on the exploitation of Arab oil as a weapon to serve the "Arab issues of destiny and existence, and the Palestinian cause."

The Arabs have raised the question of using their oil in the political arena many times in the past, but eventually realized that such a strategy could have serious effects on their economy since oil is their sole basis of development and main source of

Nevertheless, this was certainly the first time the Arabs have studied a long-range plan — five years — whose end appears to be the use of the oll issue in political bargaining with the West. The strategy is apparently linked with a five-year military plan which the Egyptian Chief of Staff, Lt.-General Sa'ad Eddin Shazii, is reportedly preparing to submit to his Arab colleagues at a scheduled 18-nation conference in Cairo next Tuesday.

The Middle East News Agency did not disclose the proposals about oil strategy; such propo-sals, it said, would have to remain confidential to avoid 'enemy" counter-action.

The Arabs seem to be counting on the fact that despite the discovery of oil in Alaska and the North Sea, the West will remain heavily dependent on Arab oil, MIDDLE EAST SCENE ANAN SAFADI in view of the mounting rise in the West's oil consumption, ex-pected to grow by over 50 per cent during the 'seventies.

The U.S., for instance, has only about ten years in proven re-serves of crude oil, but is ex-pected to double or even triple the 250 million tons it imported this year.

League studies

The Arabs base their future strategy on studies prepared recently by the Cairo-based Arab League in coordination with a number of experts, whose surveys have not been made public

Current estimates put the Arab oil in the Middle East and North Africa at some 55,000 "long" tons (about 408,000 million barrels), representing over 60 per cent of the world's proven reserves of some 85,000 million tons. This in comparison America's estimated 6,000 million tons (25 per cent of which is in Alaska) and some 500 million tons in the North Sea, in addition to 13,000 million tons the U.S.S.P.

Considering the increased consumption by the West, some Arab countries, especially Libya. have been arguing that the rest of the Arabs must restrict the export of their oil, Libyan lead-er Mu'ammer Gaddafi has imposed restrictions on his country's 3,500 million tons in reserves. In a nationwide speech this week Gaddafi charged that the U.S. was excessively pump-ing the Saudi Arabian fields (with some 20,000 million ton reserves), and Britain was doing the same in Kuwnit (9,000 million ton reserves). Abu Dhabi (2,600 million tons) and Qatar (800 million tops). The Soviets, try remains backward in comparito other Arab oil-producing states, other Arab governments are unlikely to risk their development projects and oil revenues. The Arab League expects this income to amount to over $10,000m. next year and above $14,000 in 1975.

Israel — namely Egypt, Syria and Jordan, sons: first, internal instability and inter-Arab rifts may still frustrate their bid to out a joint strategy. Second, most of the Arab states, including Egypt, continue to look to the outside world to solve the Middle East conflict.

At the moment, the Arabs await today's outcome of the U.N. General Assembly's debate. Tomorrow they will undoubtedly wait for the Security Council to set on whatever the General As-sembly resolves, expecting that the U.S. will initiate some move to break the stalemate.

The expectations will certainly be accompanied by discussion of a five-year plan about confron-tation with Iaraei — a project that might still lead to occasional border repercussions catalysed by the belligerent attitude of the Palestinian sabotage movement which fears it will be forgotten if the present standatill continues. As the Arab front-line states maintained quiet on the ceasefire lines, the terrorists this week began warring against each other in Lebanon, where three terror-lats were killed and 12 others wounded in clashes between the Fatah and the Popular Democ-ratic Front for the Liberation of

The terrorist radio station based in the southern Syrian town of Der'a charged that the sabotage movement was being neutralized by the current strategy of the Arab governments. The radio accused the oil-rich Arab states of providing the front-line countries essistance to liquidate the sabotage movement in preparation for a political settlement. It said Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Hassan Zayyat was now discussing such a settlement in New York.
